

You have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” explaining how much your health care will cost

Under the law, medical care providers need to give patients who do not have insurance or who are not using insurance an estimate of the bill for medical services, tests and supplies.

- You have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate for the total expected cost of any non-emergency medical services. This includes related costs like medical tests, prescription drugs, supplies, and any other medical clinical fees.
- Make sure your medical care provider gives you a Good Faith Estimate in writing at least three (3) business day before your medical service, tests or supplies are provided. You can also ask your medical care provider, and any other provider you choose, for a Good Faith Estimate before you schedule a service, tests or receive supplies.
- If you receive a bill that is at least $400 more than your Good Faith Estimate, you can dispute the bill.
- Make sure to save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate.
